JOANNA MASSON

Lawyer at the Paris Bar

Joanna Masson provides French and international clients with guidance on cutting-edge data protection strategies.

Lawyer at the Paris Bar since 2007, Joanna started her career at Latham & Watkins, in a team dedicated to new technologies before joining a boutique law firm specialized in intellectual property and information technology.

After practicing for seven years as a lawyer, Joanna joined the French data protection regulator (CNIL). She worked at the CNIL for six years, first in the Compliance Directorate in the economic affairs department, then in the sanctions and litigation department in the Protection of Rights and Sanctions Directorate. As such, she has guided private as well as public actors in their compliance with the French Data Protection Act ("loi Informatique et Libertés") and the European Union's general data protection regulation (the GDPR).

Joanna holds a double master's degree in French and English law from the University of Cambridge and from the University of Paris II Panthéon-Assas, a Master 2 in industrial property law from the University of Paris II Panthéon-Assas and a Master 2 in private law from the University of Paris I Panthéon-Sorbonne.
